'70 MARTINAIRE

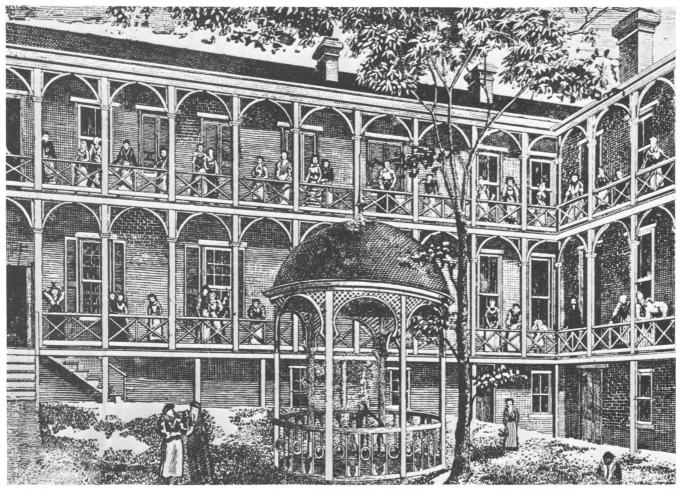

Martin College Pulaski, Tennessee

WARDEN MEMORIAL LIBRARY MARTIN METHODIST COLLEGE PULASKI, TENNESSEE

Dedication . . .

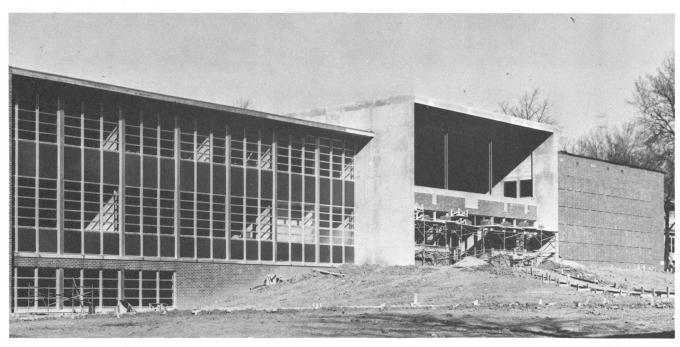

Nineteen hundred seventy marks the celebration of the Centennial Anniversary Year of Martin College. In these first pages, the Martinaire honors the memory of those who have contributed to its continual growth and development. We cherish the past as a foundation for our outstanding present and our unlimited future.

Martin's Heritage

The first high school for girls in Giles County began its existence under the name of Martin Female College in 1870, in the basement of the Methodist Church. The first president, according to the records, was "a teacher of wide experience and a Christian gentleman, "Professor William K. Jones. In 1874, property was purchased from Governor John C. Brown for the purpose of providing adequate facilities for the "gentle ladies and intelligent scholars" enrolled at that time. In 1895, new buildings were constructed on Martin's campus to continue the growth and expansion of the college. On October 16, 1904, the original administration building was destroyed by fire. In 1909, the college was taken under the leadership of the Tennessee Conference of the Methodist Church. The year 1937 saw Martin become coeducational, and as the years have passed the once female college has enrolled one fourth more men than women. Since 1951, Upperman Hall, the male dormitory; Martin Hall, the center of administration and educational activities; the Science Building; Criswell Hall, the women's dormitory; and the cafeteria and student center have been erected. During the transition from a girls' high school to a coeducational college, Martin has seen years of progress and prosperity.

Martin Today

A different generation sits beneath the oaks and magnolias of Thomas Martin's college. Gathering from varied cultures of man, the students at Martin today seek not universal truths, but those truths that are relevant to the moment. Apathy and dissent are a part of the total student. Involvement is a slow process cutting the umbilical cord of family and high school friends - the process of learning to breathe by one's self. Learning to touch upon their inner emotions, the now generation of Martin College will leave an even greater heritage to the future than all one hundred years of the past.

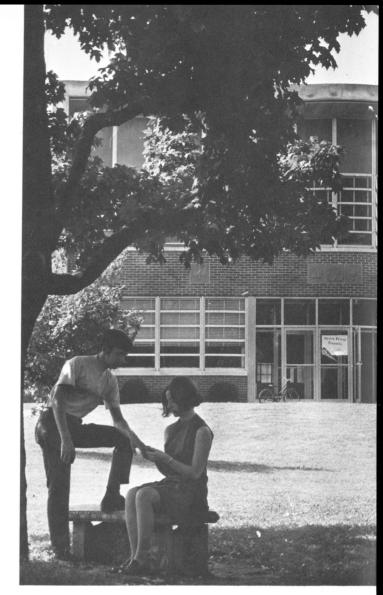

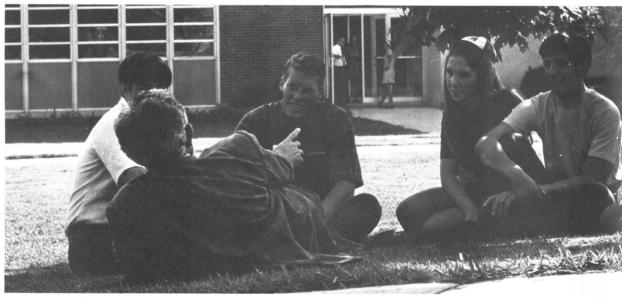

People are fitting together, as lights turn on, shining on our brief, but new season . . .

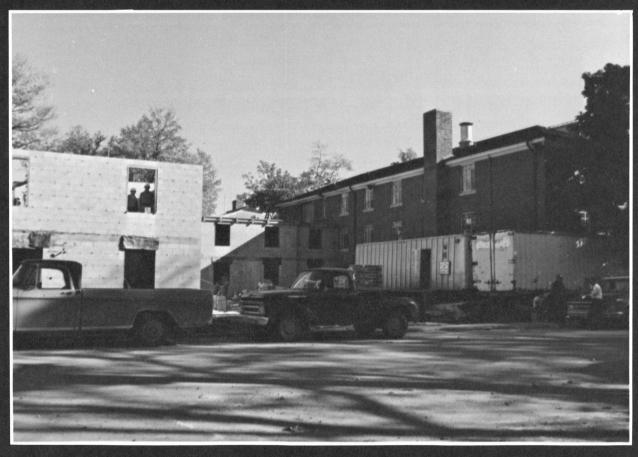

And it is knowing that we three hundred are better than ever.

Martin Looks Ahead

Martin College has shown much progress for a private junior college. In its first one hundred years, Martin has created a "great legacy." Now Martin faces a "greater future." Many projects and plans point toward an even better second hundred years. In the near future, Upperman Hall will be completed with an additional wing and the renovation of the present structure. The construction is scheduled to be finished and ready for use for the Fall Semester 1970. As part of the same project, Tennessee Hall, the present freshman men's dormitory, will be converted into a library and learning center. Recreational areas on campus will be increased with the development of the Ravine Recreational Area. The acquisition of the West Hill Elementary School and the surrounding property will be a part of Martin's future. Hopes are for a gymnasium to be built on this property. The most exciting part of the future plans is the proposed curriculum change. The traditional system is scheduled to be replaced by the "Martin Plan." This plan will eliminate the semester or quarter concept except for the transferral of credit hours. This new curriculum proposal and the added facilities offer an even more exciting Martin College for the future generations.

PRESIDENT'S MESSAGE

Dear Editors and Students:

This is the One Hundredth Year of continuous operation of Martin College. During the past century, the College has had many fluctuations in enrollment, support, and interest; however, every group of students has felt that their class was the greatest. So really, comparison profits us nothing. It is not how much the other person has done or has not done that really matters. It is how we have developed our potential; how we have grasped our opportunities.

Educators are finally waking up to the fact that civilization advances not by the transmission of know-ledge alone; not by the indoctrination of each new generation; but as an educator has recently said -

"Education is not judged by how much ground you cover, but by how many ideas you uncover."

It has also been said that

"The job of the teacher is to ring the rising bell in the dormitory of the soul."

Therefore, we ask you not to measure your achievements, your growth, your aspirations by the "average" or the "mean" of society, but to "hitch your wagon" to your own star. God has dreamed a great dream for each of us; we have dared to dream a lesser dream.

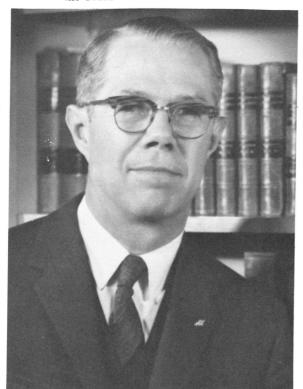

Sincerely,

F. C. Westenberger

Martin College, Teachers and Students, 1887

ADMINISTRATION AND FACULTY

Then said a teacher, Speak to us of Teaching.

And he said:

No man can reveal to you aught but that which already lies half asleep in the dawning of your knowledge.

The teacher who walks in the shadow of the temple, among his followers, gives not of his wisdom but rather of his faith and his lovingness.

If he is indeed wise he does not bid you enter the house of his wisdom, but rather leads you to the threshold of your own mind.

The astronomer may speak to you of his understanding of space, but he cannot give you his understanding.

The musician may sing to you of the rhythm which is in all space, but he cannot give you the ear which arrests the rhythm nor the voice that echoes it.

And he who is versed in the science of numbers can tell of the regions of weight and measure, but he cannot conduct you thither.

For the vision of one man lends not its wings to another man.

And even as each one of you stands alone in God's knowledge, so must each one of you be alone in his knowledge of God and in his understanding of the earth.
